DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-9, drawn to a method for charging an energy storage device associated with a defibrillator, classified in class 607, subclass 5.
- II. Claims 10-20, drawn to a device for charging an energy storage device associated with a defibrillator, classified in class 607, subclass 4.
- III. Claims 21-25, drawn to medical device, classified in class 607, subclass 2.
- IV. Claims 26-32, drawn to a medical device, classified in class 607, subclass 8.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions I and II, III and IV (apparatus) are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus that does not require sensing an average current through the flyback transformer.

3. Inventions III and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the combination does not require a charging circuit including a flyback transformer. The subcombination has separate utility such as not requiring a switch that regulates the supply energy to the primary coil, but rather to a capacitor.

4. Inventions IV and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the combination does not require a charging circuit. The subcombination has separate utility such as not requiring a switch that regulates the supply of energy to a primary coil of the transformer, but rather regulates the supply of energy transferred to the storage device.

5. Inventions IV and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the combination does not require an energy storage device that receives energy from a secondary coil of the flyback transformer. The subcombination has separate utility such as a difference circuit that generates an error signal, but rather generating a signal when the storage device is full.

6. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

7. A telephone call was made to Daniel Hanson on September 30, 2003 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

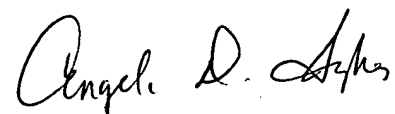

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement has been traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
